In the list of summoness at W.
London was one against Maj.-gen. G.
C. Giradot, addressed to the care of Dr. Manning, Tarerstock House, Salis bury, Wilts, at the instance of Amy Russell, who alleged that he was the father of her child. This was the case in which the complainant, a young woman who resided in Kemsford Gardens, attended at the court on several occasions in respect of the service of the summons as the address of the dofendant was unknown. By the inoccasions in respect of the service of the summons as the address of the defendant was unknown. By the in-tervention of Mr. Lane, the address was obtained through the medium of the War Office, and the summons was legally served. Attached to the sum-mons was a letter from a firm of nolicitors, tating that the case was sattled by arrangement between the parties, and therefore it was with-drawn.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

An accident, attended with fatal results, occurred at the excavation works connected with the construction of an underground havatory at the junction of the Minories and Tower Hill. While 8 workmen were engaged in excavating at a depth of about 5 feet there was a slip of earth from above weighing about a ton. Five of the men were shle to get clear, but 3 of their comrades were buried beneath the fallen earth and stones. A man named John Darlow had both his legs breken, while Thomas Smith and H. Clark sustained injuries. On a doctor sarving he pronounced Darlow's case hopeless, and the injured man died soon after. The other men were removed to the London Hoptic, where they now lie in a critical condition.

Cab-driver Hastings, badge 12,687, in the employ of R. Jukes, answered to 2 summonses at the City Summons Court for causing an obstruction and not wearing his badge.—P.C. 502 said defendant deliberately obstructed a line of traffic in Queen-st., Cheapside, and when he went to take his badge number found he was not wearing it.—Defendant denied having caused any obstruction, and said Lord Warwick, his fare, was very indignant as the constable's unwarrantable interference. His lordship told the constable he should report him to his superiors, and saided him to write his name and number down in his (Lord Warwick's) pooketbook. The constable refused to do so.—Ald. Hales fined defendant 2a. 6d. and costs for the obstruction, and ordered him to pay the costs of the other summons.

But the girl away, and accountingly an engagement was found for her in South Africa, and she left, with a family and experiment to Lady Ronte and the primary of the Captain the primary of the Governor of the family of the John Pender was an octogenarian. His long life has been well filled with business, the development of his earlier mercantile instincts having taken a scientific turn, so that he may be spoken of in more than one sense as the father of submarine telegraphy. He was one of the first subscribers to the earliest Atlantic cable experiment; and his financial and scientific influence brought him to the position of head of the Eastern, the Eastern Extension, the Cape, and other marine telegraph systems outside of the Atlantic. Sir John was a Scotchman with a Glasgow education, and a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, of the Royal Societies of England and Scotland, and of the Scottish Antiquarian Society.

The funeral took place on Friday. The body was conveyed from Foots Cray-place in a 4-horse glass funeral car, and mourners followed on foct through the park to the family vault at Foots Cray Parish Church, where the office was said by Dean Bradley, of Westminster Abbey, and the Eev. Charles Birch.

THE MIDDLE ORDER OF MANKIND ARE GENERALLY TO BE FOUND ALL THE ARTS, WISDOM, AND VISTUS OF SOCIETY. THE ORDER ALONE IS KNOWN TO BE THE TRUE PRESERVES OF FREEDOM, AND MAY BE CALLED THE ORDER OF THE PEOPLE."—Ficar of Wakefield, chap. 19.

Speaking at a dinner given last Wed-Speaking at a dinner given last we needay by Sir Arthur Arnold "to meed the County Council," the Marquis of Londonderry expressed his gratitude to the Local Government Act of 1888 which has enabled peers to seek election on the County Councils. Thanks to that piece of legislation (the handwork, be it remembered, of Lord Salisbury's Unionist Government), there are now no fewer than 135 peers who are members of County Councils, while 15 are chairmen of those bodies. Lord Londonderry might at the same time appropriately have pointed to the very considerable number of peers who have recently been chosen as mayors of important provincial towns, and who are thus taking active part in of important provincial towns, as who are thus taking active part in the municipal life of the country. As a matter of fact, however, it is not to members of the House of Lords alone that one should look for this healthy development of practical interest in local affairs. Throughout the upper and upper middle classes of the community the same phenomenon is more that one should look for this nearthy development of practical interest in local affairs. Throughout the upper and upper middle classes of the community the same phenomenon is more and more frequently to be seen. Now this strikes us as one of the healthiest springs to be observed in the present condition of the social body; but we hasten to add that we do not, in this matter, take any account of party politics. It is perfectly trut that the active participation in municipal affairs of those classes of the community which have the most considerable mainty which have the most considerable affairs. Throughout the country is likely, as a matter of fact, to tend to the premotion of an enlightened Consequence of the season of the desire and several pictures of plate being affairs of those classes of the common of an enlightened Consequence of the season of the destruction of anything since the season of the season of the destruction of advantages of all their fellow-citisens without distinction of party. It must be confessed that at one time nothing seemed less likely to come to pass than the awakening to which we refer. It is not very long ago since "the classee" showed a decided dismolination to take any active part in local affairs. We do not say that this disinclination ever came within measureable distance of the disdainful repagnance with which all that is best in American society holds aloof allife in the United States. Neverthank Heaven l—has the level of any department of public life in this country sunk so low as to give any class of the community the slightest excuse for regarding it in that light. Nevertheless "the classes" were inclined to maintain an attitude of benevolent neutrality not devoid of personal indolence; and we sincerely congratulate the growing number of their members who have abandoned that attitude, and have frankly come forward to do their duty.

If one desires an object reason in the consequences of the complete with-drawal of the best elements in society from public affairs one has but to look at the state of things which prevails in America. At the present time value in America. At the present time one of the two great parties in the State appears to have fallen completely into the power of the most uncorupulous, dishonest, and corrupt creatures who degrade public life in oreatures who degrade public into the United States. When one sees revolutionaries like Governor Altgeld, who openly preach the doctrine of plunder, in a fair way to obtain the control of the social and financial control of the social and financial policy of a great nation, one cannot but feel that things would not be as they are, that the "Beases" would not be so they are, that the "Beases" would not be so they are that the "Beases" would not be so they are the solution only used their influence for anything like all it should be worth. In the absence of a proper participation by the well-to-do classes the control of municipal, as of political affairs is bound to fall into the hands of the professional, that is, to say the man who does not do the work for the work's sake—as it ought to be done—but with a view to making say the man who does not do the work for the work's sake—a it ought to be done—but with a view to making more or lees of a good thing of it. There is no way whatever by which the preponderance of the professional can be prevented except the participation of all classes of the community in the public life of the nation. If the majority of the ratepayers who do not display an intelligent interest in local affairs, and if the best men among them will not take the trouble to represent them, then, as Mr. Chamberlain said at Birmingham on Wednesday, there can be no successful municipal life. One of the great difficulties under which a voter labours at vestry, and county council, and other such elections is that of finding out something as to the sort of men the candidates are, because in most instances their personality is not generally known. But, on the other hand, when the candidate is a member of a well-known family or has come prominently before the public it is easy to discover the valid reasons for supporting or opposing his candidature. On these grounds we are convinced that men of position, means, and sufficient leisure can do no better service to their fellow-citizens than by taking on active part in the municipal life of the districts in which they live, en active part in the municipal life of the districts in which they live.

MR. BALFOUR ON ATHLETICS. SPECK AT STANFORD BRIDGS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

MR. A. J. Balfour, M.P., was present of the standard Bridge grounds yesterday afternoon, when the third annual athletic meeting of the Association of Conservative Clubs was held. Amongst others present were: The Duke of Leeds, Mrs. and Mr. Hayes Fisher, M.P., Mr. Herbert Fraed, Capt. Middleton, Mr. Southell, Mr. E. C. Bredin and Col. Colvillo. In distributing the prizes, Mr. Balfour congratulated those concerned in the success of the meeting, and pointed out that there were critics who watched the rapid growth of interest in athletic matters with something like suspicion—he would not say dislike. He did not share their views—thear, hear)—for he had always held that the healthy interest in athletic sports, and games of all kinds, was one of the most distinguishing and characteristic marks of the sace in which we lived, and of the country and race to which we belonged, and was an admirable Sion or THE TIMES.

He could not pretend to say that it had never led to abuse, but what a human institution or pursuit was there which did not at some time lead to to abuse? But in the main he believed it to be admirable and healthy. The association also developed the social eide, good fellowship being fostered between one part of the focuntry and another. The result was that these competitions had become a social bond of union which fostered an excellent mutual feeling between men engaged in similar and congenial pursuits in all pints of the country. Already the clubs affiliated numbered not less than 200,000 members, and nothing could more conduce to so desirable a result than such gatherings as they were assisting at (Applause,—Mr. Balfour on leaving the ground was loudly cheered.

SHIPPING CASUALTIES.

The barque Wendla was towed into Dover harbour resterday in a damaged state. It appears that when in midchannel she collided with the barque Maria, of and for Cardiff. The crew of the Wendla were landed at Folkestone by the Maria.

The following telegram has been received from Lloyd's agent at Cherbourg, dated July 11, 2.55 am.;—"Steamers Emerall, Newcastle for Valencia, and Woolloomooloo, Sydney for London, have been in collision. Former vessel has put in badly damaged. Woolloomooloo passengers asved, part of crew landed here. Supposed foundered. All on board saved." The fog was so dense that it was impossible to see any distance ahead, and even the semaphore stations had no knowledge of the collision, which only became known here on the arrival of the Emerald in port.

A later telegram states that the Woolloomooloo had arrived in the roads. Lloyd's agent at Fortland telegraphs as follows:—"I.M.S. Landrail has arrived with crew of the Siren, of Greeneck, from Sydney to London, with which vassel she collided and for esveral feet just above the water line, and only kept affoat owing to the bulkheads of the wateright compartments preventing the water reaching the other parts of the ship. The Woolloomooloo had an immense hole in her starboard side below the water line. The Emerald, which was the less damaged of the two, took on board the 48 passengers of the Australian vessel, and ahaped her course for Cherbourg, where, as already stated, she arrived, and disembarked the shipwrecked people, who were accommodated in various hotels by direction of the British Consul. The Woolloomooloo anchored in the roads in tow of the British steamer North Devon. She has a heavy list forward, her bow being sunk 6 feet, while her propeller is in the air. The Emerald went into the Commercial Dock, but the Woolloomooloo remains at any chor. The pumps have to be kept working without cossation to keep the versel affoat. It is feared that above the string without cossation to keep the vorking the vorking their vessel having been cut in two by the gunboat Landrail, 20 miles of Portland, early in the evening. The Siren was bound from bydney to London with wool and tallow. She was struck amidship by the Landrail, and foundered almost unnately succeeded in saving the crew.

tunately succeeded in saving the crew. The Landrail was very much damaged.

NAVAL MANGEUVRES.
Yesterday morning the assembly in Plymouth Sound of vessels composing the Reserve Fleet was pratically completed by the arrival of several ships from castward. Only the cruiser, Galatea, guardship at Hull, and the gunboate Renard, Landrail, and Circa, and a few torpedo boate were absent, and they were expected last night. All the other vessels have coaled and been prepared for sea. Both the Channel Fleet at Portland and the Reserve Fleet will put to sea on Monday for a week's cruise preliminary to the Naval maneuvres.

Our Plymouth correspondent, telegraphing last night, says:—Never in the history of Plymouth has such a magnificent sight of battleships been witnessed, Although it is the second port of the Empire, the scene to-day has been most animated, 40 vessils being anchored out of the 60 which are to rendezvous at Plymouth. Thousands of people are throughing the Hoe or taking trips round the fleet in steamers and sailing boats. But perhaps the most animated scene and the best enthusiasm has been expressed by our kith and kin scross the seas. From

MAGISTRATE AND CHILD.
At Bow-st. yesterday it was said that Patrick Mechan, a pedlar, had gone from house to house in Woburn-sq. offering his goods in a manner which caused great annoyance. When cautioned he became abusive and cautioned he became abusive and violent. At the station he said, "It's my beastly temper; I am very sorry."—Prisoner pleaded for himself vigort ously, but Sir J. Bridge stopped him, tasying, "You have someone in court who pleads for you much better than you can do for yourself. As you entered the court your child, who is at the back in its mother's arms, cried out 'Daddy,' in a way that cong vinces me that you have been a loving father.
